A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE CHINESE AMERICAN MEDICAL SOCIETY

by John Li, M.D.

The Chinese American Medical Society was formed in New York City, in 1964, the result of the union of alumni associations of medical colleges in Shanghai, Peking, and several other cities, which had been meeting here for a number of years. The new organization had the objectives of advancing medical knowledge and scientific research and establishing scholarships for students and endowments for medical schools and hospitals.

Originally numbering some 70 members, the organization had over 400 members by 1986. It attracted members through its biannual meetings, held in early summer and late fall; a quarterly Bulletin that included the latest medical papers published by members; a comprehensive membership Directory; an annual Scientific Award for notable medical/scientific research; and, not the least, for the camaraderie it offered to classmates, schoolmates, and colleagues. In those early years, spouses and children all helped in putting together the biannual meetings.

Scholarships for medical students started in 1973, with 4 awards a year. By 2001, over 130 scholarships had been awarded. The amount of the awards, $1,000 each, has not changed. In the 1970s, the scholarship fund was considerably larger than the annual operating budget of the society. The awardees have gone on to become active practitioners as well as faculty members at well-known medical centers.

Also in the 1970s, the society started establishing chapters in several cities. The first was the Capital District Chapter in Albany, followed by the Greater Boston Chapter. In the late 1980s, the Mid-Atlantic Chapter came into being. Each Chapter elects its own officers, holds its own meetings, and sends representatives to the meetings in New York. The Chapters bring a wider perspective to the meetings, and a couple of annual meetings have been held at Chapter sites.

A name change was adopted in 1985. Initially, the organization was called the American Chinese Medical Society; the new name, Chinese American Medical Society, or CAMS, emphasizes the American aspect and reflects the fact that more and more of the new members and officers were US medical graduates.

At the same time that CAMS was growing and attracting new members through its program of excellent continuing medical education meetings, with topics centered around diseases common among Chinese Americans, a similar movement coalesced on the West Coast. There, physicians at the Chinese Hospital in San Francisco and several other groups put together biennial meetings, starting in 1981, with similar intent and programs. These meetings were titled International Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America, and they usually extended over a 3-day weekend. Recognizing our common interests, the leadership of CAMS joined forces with the West Coast group and proceeded to host the Third (1986), the Seventh (1994), and the upcoming Eleventh (2002) International Conference. These meetings have attracted considerable attention and brought increased awareness of the issues.

A natural outcome of this collaboration has been the formation of a Federation of medical societies from the USA and Canada, to formalize our shared interest in promulgating research, practice, and improved access to health care on the part of the Chinese in North America. At this time, there are 7 US societies and 2 Canadian societies in the Federation.

Another aspect of the development of CAMS, starting in the 1970s, has been its support of the Chinatown Health Clinic. This clinic was founded in 1971 as a free clinic serving the many new immigrants arriving in New York as a result of the immigration law changes of 1965. This support has grown stronger and is now a mutually re-enforcing relationship with emphasis on clinical practice and epidemiological research.

In the late 1980s, as managed health care started to spread into the metropolitan area, some members had the foresight to recognize this as the wave of things to come. Thus the Society fostered participation in managed care groups, to the advantage of both patients and providers. In 1997, the Chinese American Independent Practice Association (CAIPA) was formed, which today numbers more than 200 members. CAIPA donated funds to initiate a CAMS/CAIPA Community Service Fund in the year 2000. Earlier this year, two grants devoted to health care of the Chinese community were awarded by this fund.

Looking back over the 38 years of its existence, CAMS has changed and yet remained the same. The main change has been the gradual increase in US medical graduates, although significant numbers of new members are from China, Taiwan, and elsewhere in the Far East. Despite this change and its cultural implications, the underlying concern is still about medical care, education, and research among the Chinese.

The Society now has over 850 members, including 250 in the Chapters, and over 60 medical students. Mention must be made of a few people among the many who were critical to its growth and success. This short list includes Dr. Percy Tung, a founding member who worked for several years to organize the society and obtain tax exempt status for it; the late Dr. S. J. Yue, a founder and first President, who led the infant society through its first decade; Dr. Wang Hsueh Hwa, Treasurer, President, and then Executive Director since 1986, whose energy and ability have made CAMS what it is today; and Dr. David Chiu, whose 15 years of active leadership led to the formation of the Federation. Finally, we must recognize the many physicians who served as officers or on the Board of Directors, who gave generously of their time, effort, and counsel and who made CAMS an enduring and notable organization.

Dr. Li, Chairman of Pathology at Long Island College Hospital, Brooklyn, NY is past-President of CAMS (1992-93).

STATE OF NEW YORK

GEORGE E. PATAKI
GOVERNOR

May 25, 2002

Dear Friends:

It is a pleasure to extend greetings to all gathered for the Eleventh Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America.

The Empire State is proud to be home to organizations that contribute to the health and well-being of New York's diverse Asian-American community. Your Conference has a long history dating back to 1982, encouraging the exchange of ideas and sharing of individual experiences. You accomplish this by sponsoring workshops and seminars which deal with pressing issues that face the community. All those who have offered their time and efforts on behalf of the Conference and its works can be proud on this special occasion, as your actions will help ensure that New York remains healthy through the 21st century.

I would like to thank the Chinese American Medical Society and the Chinatown Health Clinic for cosponsoring this wonderful event. Best wishes to all for a successful conference and may you continue your worthwhile work for many years to come.

Very truly yours,

Dear Friends:

I am delighted to welcome everyone attending the Eleventh Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America.

This is an important event for the healthcare and well being of Chinese Americans. In the aftermath of 9/11, Chinatown suffered greatly, not only economically and socially but also in the physical and emotional health of its residents and workers. Its proximity to Ground Zero amplifies the issues Chinatown now faces.

The Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America brings together physicians and participants from a variety of hospitals and organizations in an effort to deal with the issues facing this community.

I am grateful to the Chinese American Medical Society, the Chinatown Health Clinic of New York City and the NYU Downtown Hospital for hosting this event. On behalf of our City, I offer my best wishes for an informative and enjoyable conference.

Sincerely,

NEW YORK STATE ASSEMBLY

May 25, 2002

Dear Friends:

Please accept my sincerest greetings as you gather for The Eleventh Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America.

As the Chinatown Community tries to cope with the aftermath of the World Trade Center disaster, which has had a severe impact on the physical, psychological and emotional health of all community members, this weekend's conference is an important step in the community's healing process. With topics ranging from community health updates to in-depth discussions of stroke, hepatitis, diabetes, cardiovascular disease, mental health problems, renal disease, gene therapy, complementary medicine and organ transplant surgery, this conference will provide for a serious discussion of the health problems affecting the Chinese Community in New York City and beyond. The Chinese American Medical Society, the Chinatown Health Clinic of New York City, and NYU Downtown Hospital should be proud of their efforts to organize such an important conference, and I salute these organizations for a job well done.

Again, welcome to the conference, and best wishes for a productive conference and continued success.

Sincerely,

To My Friends at the Chinese American Medical Society:

I am pleased to extend greetings to the Chinese American Medical Society as it sponsors its Eleventh Conference to be held on May 25th – 26th.

Chinese American physicians founded CAMS almost forty years ago. Since its founding, CAMS has fostered the sharing of medical information to improve available treatments and pioneer new medical procedures. CAMS now has an impressive membership of over 880 physicians to facilitate its goals.

CAMS and eight other medical societies from the United States and Canada will continue the important work of sharing medical information to improve the lives of people by holding this Conference, which will draw participants from not only the United States, but from overseas. I congratulate the members of CAMS and the conference participants and wish you continued success on your important work.

Sincerely,

Benjamin K. Chu, M.D.
President

Dear Colleagues:

As President of the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC), I would like to extend my support for the Eleventh Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America. This conference, co-sponsored by the Chinese American Medical Society and Chinatown Health Clinic, New York, NY, brings Chinese physicians and scholars together to discuss health and health related problems impacting the Chinese community. The conference will assist HHC improve its provision of health care to ten percent of our patient population.

As you know, the Institute of Medicine report finds that minorities receive inferior health care and that this racial and ethnic disparity exists regardless of income or insurance coverage. In addition, immigrant communities face other barriers to care such as limited English proficiency and a lack of cultural competency in many institutions. HHC is committed to providing the highest level of care for our patients, and that each person is treated with dignity and respect, cultural sensitivity and compassion regardless of ability to pay. In fact, the care HHC provides to minority communities equal or surpass the nationally reported care provided to the non-minority white population.

While HHC is doing better than the nation as a whole in the provision of health care to minority communities, there is a lot more that could be done to decrease disparity between minority and whites as it relates to morbidity and mortality. Events like the Eleventh Conference on Health Problems Related to Chinese in North America looks at disease patterns and comparative health data for Chinese patients, in addition to encouraging clinical and basic research by Chinese physicians and scholars. HHC hopes to benefit from such collaborations to improve health outcomes for our Chinese patients.

Sincerely,

I am delighted to extend my best wishes to the Chinese American Medical Society on the occasion of its Eleventh Health Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America.

Advances and breakthroughs in molecular and genomic technologies are opening up new horizons for the diagnosis and the treatment of diseases, which will enable us to live longer and enjoy a better quality of life. Hong Kong is well positioned to become a leader in the niche area of bio-medical research and the development of treatment of diseases that are unique to or common among Chinese and Asian people.

As the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region's Commissioner to the United States, I am pleased to see the Chinese American Medical Society addressing the important issue of health problems of Chinese communities in North America. I am particularly pleased to note that this International Conference includes participants from Hong Kong. This is yet another demonstration of the strong social and economic ties between the United States and Hong Kong.

I wish you all every success in the Conference.

Dear Drs. Saw and Wang:

On behalf of the Trustees, physicians and staff of NYU Downtown Hospital, I want to welcome you to New York City for your eleventh Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America. I want to thank you for choosing our great city to hold this important conference for members of the Chinese medical community. I also want to thank the Chinatown Health Clinic, our partners in serving the local Chinese community, for joining the Chinese American Medical Society in sponsoring the Conference.

As you probably know, NYU Downtown Hospital is the leading healthcare provider for the Chinese community in New York City. Many of the leading members of CAMS practice medicine at our Hospital. We are extremely proud of the contributions all of our Chinese physicians make to community and, equally important, proud of their research on health problems and their strong advocacy for improving the health of New York City residents of Chinese heritage.

I hope you have a successful and productive Conference, and an enjoyable weekend in New York City. You and your colleagues should always feel free to call on NYU Downtown Hospital for any assistance you may need.

Sincerely,

FEDERATION OF CHINESE AMERICAN AND CHINESE CANADIAN MEDICAL SOCIETIES

Dear Participant:

Thank you for coming, and welcome to the Big Apple! As the retiring Board Chairman of the Federation of Chinese American and Chinese Canadian Medical Societies, I wish you a wonderful time updating your medical knowledge while you enjoy the camaraderie so unique to this Conference. We merge the latest currents in modern medicine with the sensitivities and outlook of our Chinese heritage against a North American backdrop.

I apologize for my absence as our son is graduating from his MBA program in San Francisco, and I must leave immediately after the Board meeting on Friday. It is the first time I shall miss this Conference since its birth in 1982.

My term as Chairman comes to an end with a hunger of wishing I could have done more, but the leadership of the FCMS is in excellent hands with Drs. Hsueh-hwa Wang and Caroline Wang. I do thank the Board members and committee chairs for their hard work and marvelous achievements since the Tenth Conference in San Francisco two years ago.

We have had an eventful administration. I am pleased to announce that last month, the FCMS Foundation was officially licensed in California. They can now go about raising funds to support the mission of the Federation. I am grateful for the rebirth of our website, the launching of our newsletters, and the start of an organized research program, including three new research initiatives. The International Office has been moved to a larger suite in Chinese Hospital, San Francisco. We have installed new office furnishings, including computers. A fund development program has been started and a search is underway for staffing. Fresh organizational starts have been made in Los Angeles, Seattle, and Calgary; and the stage is now set for an aggressive recruitment of individual members. Ties to our Toronto friends were strengthened by a busy board meeting there.

All of this progress has been made by a volunteer staff and a cadre of volunteer physicians. We have come a long way in between Conferences, and I extend my deepest gratitude and that of the entire FCMS to Patricia Chung, CMSC, and her assistant, Ms. Isabella Lee, for their dedication and their excellent supportive skills. They have made the FCMS what it is today. I also wanted to congratulate Dr. Hsueh-hwa Wang and her New York associates for this fantastic Conference. It holds the promise of being the best ever, despite organizing problems imposed by tragic terrorist events this past year.

I wish the incoming officers the same marvelous experience I have enjoyed at the helm of the FCMS. God bless you all as you carry on the mission of the Federation.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear friends:

It is hard to believe that two years have gone by and my term as President is coming to an end. FCMS has come a long way since its inauguration in 1994. We owe much of our successes to the hard work and dedication of the Board members, and the support of all member organizations. In 2001 our friends at Los Angeles first left us but later re-joined us. We see a new member organization, the Philippine Chinese American Medical Association, joining us and bringing us new ideas and input. And, very importantly, as pointed out by our Chairman of the Board, Dr. Collin Quock, we now have our Foundation established.

Our website is remodeled and has a new look. Many of the member organizations are doing community based research and are carrying out projects aiming at upgrading the health care service and/or awareness of the Chinese community. It is perhaps difficult to plan and execute projects together with the participation of all or at least many member organizations. But this is probably the way things will evolve, and we will eventually get together. The important fact is that we are networking and communicating. We are learning from each other. The Health Conference is an excellent media for members to report their work, to discuss their findings, and best of all, to get together over a drink, a meal or the dinner-gala.

I am very proud to present to you the Eleventh International Health Conference, hosted by the Chinese American Medical Society, the Chinatown Health Clinic, and the Chinese American Independent Practice Association. We have put together an excellent CME scientific program, which is sponsored by the NYU Downtown Hospital. This one and one half day venture features many speakers prominent in their respective fields of expertise, from New York City as well as from out of town. And, as it turns out, we have a 100 percent Chinese cast!

It could not be a better way to end my tenure as President at the conclusion of the Eleventh Health Conference. I wish that the tradition will continue, the next Conference will still be better, and good luck to Dr. Caroline Wang who will take over the baton. In the meantime, enjoy the sessions, enjoy your stay, and enjoy the hospitality of the Big Apple!

Sincerely,

Hsueh hwa Wang, M.D.

Dear Friends:

We are delighted to have the opportunity to co-chair the Eleventh International Conference on Health Problems Related to the Chinese in North America. It is our great pleasure to extend warmest greetings to all participants.

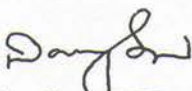

As President and Immediate Past President, respectively, of the Chinese American Medical Society (CAMS), we express our sincere appreciation to the Board of Directors for their active involvement in raising funds, organizing events, and coordinating an excellent scientific program. We wish to thank the Chinese American Independent Practice Association and the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center for co-hosting the Conference. We would like also to thank NYU Downtown Hospital to sponsor us for the CME credits, and all the vendors for their generous financial support of our activities.

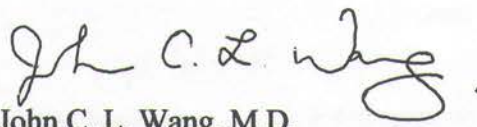

The Federation of Chinese American and Chinese Canadian Medical Societies (FCMS) is to be commended for continuing this highly respected health education program for the Chinese in North America.

In 1994, New York was the host for the Seventh Conference and we are honored to be selected again. The events of September 11 have made it a priority to ensure that "the show must go on" in New York.

PROFESSIONAL INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT: PRESCRIPTION FOR YOUR FINANCIAL HEALTH

Because you are a successful physician, the demands of your patients—not to mention insurance companies and government regulations—can leave you little time to tend to your own needs. If you are like many physicians, your financial affairs are one of the first areas to suffer for lack of personal attention. And it's no wonder.

For even the most dedicated investor, indentifying the right investment opportunities for your personal and retirement assets can be a difficult and time consuming task. We can help. For a complimentary financial consultation, please contact:
