Memorial Lecture Tributes

The Chinese American Medical Association of Southern California would like to commemorate the memory of three physicians that dedicated their lives to helping the Chinese American community.

Dr. Julius F. Sue Memorial Lecture

Julius F. Sue, M.D. served the Los Angeles Chinese-American community for over 50 years (1947-2002). As one of the first Chinese-American physicians in Chinatown Los Angeles, he worked as a traditional general practitioner who delivered babies and took care of their siblings, parents, and grandparents. In 1947, he started his medical practice in downtown Los Angeles, shortly afterwards, he moved one mile north to the heart of Chinatown Los Angeles. He joined the medical staff at French Hospital, now known as Pacific Alliance Medical Center (PAMC), where he eventually became Chief of Staff. In 1991, he was also named the Chairman of the PAMC Health Foundation. Dr. Sue was one of the founding members of the Chinese American Medical Association of Southern California (CAMASC), formerly known as Chinese Physicians for Chinatown (CPC) in the 1970's.

Dr. Sue and his wife, Eleanor, are well-respected for their volunteerism and philanthropic spirits. Together, they established scholarship funds at the Oregon Health & Science University, UCLA School of Medicine, and nursing home funds to the PAMC Health Foundation. Their invaluable contributions to the medical community and the Chinese community are forever admirable.

Dr. Henry B. Woo Memorial Lecture

In December 1906 Henry B. Woo, M.D. was born in Oakland, California after his parents had been forced to flee the earthquake and fire which had destroyed San Francisco across the bay. His educational journey took him through the University of California Berkeley, George Washington University Medical School in Washington DC and surgical training at Fordham University Hospital in New York. As the initial Chinese Western-trained and boarded surgeon to practice at Chinese Hospital, Dr. Woo helped develop humanitarian and medical standards which continue to serve the Chinese and general San Francisco community at large.

Dr. Woo was a clinical instructor in surgery at Stanford University School of Medicine when it was in San Francisco. He would open the community to professors from the University Of California School Of Medicine with invitations to operate at Chinese Hospital; and, during those early years, because of his belief in continuing medical education before it was institutionalized, he visited prominent surgeons in the United States and abroad throughout his career.

Dr. Harry Lee Memorial Lecture

Dr. Harry Lee was a native of Portland, Oregon. He was a colonel, Medical Corps, Flight Surgeon, US Army Reserve, Retired, before starting his solo private practice in Internal Medicine in 1958 in San Francisco and continued until 2008. Dr. Lee was a visionary in the care of Chinese patients. He was instrumental in the inception of the On Lok Senior Health Services, where he served as Medical Director, and also the founder of the Asian Pacific Islander Health Forum, where he served as founding President of the Board.

He was a key person in the Chinese medical community of San Francisco, where he served as Chief of Medical Staff, Chinese Hospital for 7 years, longest elected Chief of Medical Staff since founding of the hospital in 1925. He also served as medical advisor of Chinese Hospital Board of Trustees (1997 to 2008) and was Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Chinese Hospital.

Closest to Dr. Lee's heart was the Federation. He was a founding member and Chairman of the Board (1994-1997) of the Federation of Chinese American and Canadian Medical Societies (FCMS) and as Executive Vice-President from February 1997 to 2008.
